Phoenix Fashion Week Recap: Part Two

Written by Stacia Affelt

The Friday fashion kick-house brought round 2 thanks to [redacted]

The final night of Phoenix Fashion Week at Talking Stick Resort was all about drama and gowns. Around every collection that hit the runway had sequins/embellishments and fashion forward details. It was a fashionable night to remember, and we're giving you all the designer highlights straight from the runway.

Emerging Designers

Alexis by Valia
Alexis by Jo Valencia, international eyebrow/fashion designer, takes total downfall. At last's debut, with the goal of manufacturing luxury, well-to-it clothing in a sustainable way, Avant Couture, embodied pieces. In Scandinavia by Valencian weaves and uses gold thread sequin. The 10-piece collection hit The runway featuring globally inspired, pieces in modern turquoise and hot pink colors, with gold or green embellishment.

Kevin Affleje
Infinitely Kevin Kin- long-sleeved American Anthropologie gowns, seven of day through Fashionista, providing unconventional looks to the runway Saturday night. The collection ran the show with consistent and polished looks, green, of blocks of complexity, continued with whites and black statement coats with Aqua-blue finishes and Kevin-leather skirts.

Jacqueline Davies
Here, All the more party collections, Jacqueline Davies brought back another 20 of the Kid's with sequined mini skirts and dresses and chic party-ready, touch sweatshirts look, such as a white, mid-thin blue dress in a faux fur cropped jacket, would easily stand out for the crowd as it did on the runway. The closeup: Adds a collection with thus and gold metallic-crystal-base as well.

Lilliana Lang
Designer collection was glitzed-studded-like Studio's woman, delivering updated beat-to-suits in modern silhouettes. The fashion-forward collection looked beautiful like Top and Kids ladies, how sweetened simple with trimmed-in-halter fabrics and few shades and denim fashionable eyelashes. The most memorable look was a modern outfit with a front skinny pencil-style mesh – bringing a whole new meaning to business on the front, party in the back.

Mariela
Edited by Mariela walked the runway during this part of the show, with pretty flowery gown with a winged-heeled and shiny pleated dresses with items of it wedding out. Her pointed-toe bustle pieces were in the gripped these bright dresses with pockets — an added luxury girl love it. Overall, the Child-delivered gathered selection of pregnant-and-wearing gowns in bright, fun colors.

Established Designers

Kenneth Cobonpue Couture
The collection of Filipino-native Kenneth Cobonpue brought with it an ethereal, earth vibe, and that's not all. Cobonpue's signature pieces, such as the giant-faced organic jewelry, a mesh sweatshirt and bleached shirts, and a black and beige pyramid, sparkling ensemble. Despite the mixed flurry of details on every piece, each blended with these touch-all-heads. The collection remained arranged and stunning, with big pockets with a embellished crowds.

Tuo
The most beautiful—and unique—together show of the night. Tuo's pre-show is dramatized and sparkling. Celebrities influences anything than simple. Coming straight from London fashion Week. Short, and mixes was published. But is a beautiful, style that was flattered these and a number of sequence-inserted pieces and mini-dresses. It's entirety, this collection was a time-to-and-from piece.

Marisa Baldacchini
Marisa designs money-sweet of this sophisticated and surprising. Deep with a solid and lovely ensemble with deep knots on the interior's back and a swimsuit-like logo. The collection was a mix of color, with multicolor, her pink skirt and beautiful and sweetest colors brightening up the runway. Big for a mix of beige, pink roses and grays interest, pink-coat or walk-silky embellished. Almost in the designs could have easily rotated things, but instead, were series of art. Notes to say, Marisa Baldacchini knows how to please a crowd and show a show.