

La Casa Builders Celebrates 25 Years of Crafting Luxury Homes

Written by David M. Brown

Photo by Maria McCay

La Casa Builders Inc. is celebrating 25 years of custom home-building and renovations.

Founded in 1991, La Casa Builders works in a variety of styles: Mediterranean, Ranch, Contemporary, Traditional, Southwest Regional, Craftsman and Fusion. Complementing this diverse building palette has been a quarter century of quality, integrity and honesty working with customers, industry partners and local municipalities.

“For 25 years, it’s been a great adventure meeting and getting to know new clients and making their dreams come true,” says owner Tim Larson, who is assisted by a team of architects, design specialists and company staff.

Since the company’s start-up, building a luxury home has been about building relationships. “Our business is based on service to customers and having an honest open book policy through the building process,” Larson says.

Expert at hillside construction and golf course lots, La Casa Builders has delivered retirement, getaway and family homes in master-planned developments such as Silverleaf, DC Ranch, Desert Mountain and Desert Highlands in North Scottsdale and on premium sites in Phoenix, Paradise Valley and Carefree. The company is a leader in premium renovations as well.

La Casa Builders is also a Valley pioneer in green construction and continues to incorporate advancements in sustainable technology, science and products, as requested.

“Our clients have entrusted us with some of the most important projects in their lives,” Larson says. “Our vendors and subcontractors have also been integral to our success, and the La Casa family extends its appreciation to them as well,” he adds. “We are most grateful to everyone at this landmark time for our company.”