

Nov. 3: Brophy College Preparatory's Fashion Show

Written by Editorial

Over the last 20 years, the Brophy Fashion Show has raised almost $6 million to fund financial aid for students who would otherwise not have the opportunity to attend Brophy College Preparatory. This year's fashion show is Thursday, Nov. 3 at the Fairmont Scottsdale Princess, starting at 10:30 a.m..

Brophy has partnered with Neiman Marcus, as the department store celebrates 25 years in Arizona. The show will feature the designs of Badgley Mischka, with Mark Badgley and James Mischka on hand to present their clothing. The much-anticipated event includes a social hour, lunch, shopping, raffles and great clothing showcased by Brophy seniors, as well as professional models.

Co-chairs Shawna Warner and Tracy Basile, who are both mothers of Brophy seniors, began planning the beloved event months ago. "We are grateful for Tracy's and Shawna's leadership and volunteerism on behalf of Brophy," says Adria Renke, Brophy's President. "The dollars raised from their tireless work positively impacts the lives of deserving students and their families."

Brophy, a Jesuit school, develops Men for Others, and asks them to "Go forth, and set the world on fire." With that in mind, the senior class chose as its theme, "Be the Light," and this year's fashion show has adopted that theme.
