

Written by Christina Silvestri

A new luxury home development community will open its doors this weekend within the heart of North Scottsdale.

Rosewood at Sierra Boulders lends residents a personalized desert escape, limiting its capacity to 15 luxurious estate-quality homes on large acre lots that boast majestic mountain views.

The one-story residences within this private gated community are designed for seamless indoor/outdoor living that either meet or exceed the Environments for Living “Diamond Standard” and the Environmental Protection Agency’s Energy Star guidelines.

Each home ranges in size from approximately 4,100 to 5,050 livable square feet, in addition to spacious courtyards, covered loggias and retractable walls of glass. Interior features include almost everything one can think of to live in the lap of luxury: 12-foot-high ceilings, custom iron front doors, sumptuous master suites and spa-like master baths, Gourmet Kitchens with state-of-the art appliances, custom cabinetry, and granite countertops, and more.

Homes at Rosewood at Sierra Boulders are available in a variety of custom architectural design styles, including: Spanish Colonial, and Mediterranean and Tuscan, including such authentic detailing as stone, cantera, Spanish tile, iron, and mud-set roof tiles.

Come celebrate and visit the grand opening of Rosewood at Sierra Boulders this Saturday, March 15 and Sunday, March 16.

Please visit www.rosewoodhomes.com for more information.