Written by Jeremy McVicars

Creating amazing outdoor landscapes all start with a vision and unique design process.

Today, advanced technology and the computer can virtually do any task for us. However, we at Refined Gardens believe that there is still an art and creative touch that only the human hand can harness. That is why all of our garden concepts start with unique, hand-drawn sketches.

We first start with quick doodles on scratch paper and use AD markers to add splashes of color to explore the many possible design concepts. These creative illustrations allow us to focus next on an exterior space plan that perfectly fits the client's desires, needs and aesthetic.

We then present the client with these potential design concepts through large hand-drawn creative illustrations. This really engages the client and makes them an integral part of the evolving design process.

At the same time, we employ technology to construct 3D models of projects to further help the client visualize what a design would actually look like. We utilize technology such as AutoCAD, Photoshop and multiple 3D modeling tools to create such realistic renderings that our clients sometimes mistake them for photographs.

At Refined Gardens we mix hand-drawn art with technology to create elegant landscape designs. We want our clients to fall in love with the space planning and conceptual ideas so that we can work together to further develop details to make their landscape dream a reality. After finalizing all the design details our seasoned craftsman methodically construct every detail of the garden.

For more information about Refined Gardens, please visit www.refinedgardens.com.