

Yes.

I was at a family reunion that caused me to drive through Kenosha, Wisconsin the other week, and my cousin casually mentioned that the Jelly Belly headquarters located there sold "Belly Flops" in two-pound bags for like, $9.

If you aren't familiar, Jelly Belly sells little teeny boxes of beans for like $4 normally, so these massive bags are a smokin' good deal. The only catch? They're all a little weird. Stuck together, odd shapes and sizes, maybe slightly off, flavor-wise.

Even better, I say. And you can buy them online!
