

A 'Road to Nowhere' that leads to Luxury, Wilderness and Peace

Written by Noemi Gonzalez
Monday, 19 March 2012 14:42 -

Nestled within a picturesque environment made up of snow-capped mountains and the wild Ponderosa Pine Forest, Greer Lodge Resort & Cabins sits only four hours away from Phoenix, awaiting the arrival of newcomers and re-visitors alike and immersing them into the perfect getaway for spring break.

It's time to welcome a well-deserved break and take the family, including the dog, up to a place where memories are guaranteed to be made. The lodge gives access to bikes and local biking paths, as well as snow tubes to enjoy the last fall of the snow in Northern Arizona.

But Greer Lodge Resort & Cabins offers more than just the ideal family vacation and romantic hot-spot. It also offers a silent and rejuvenating place for solo-fishermen and fisherwomen to retreat to and get away from the rush of a crowd. Feel like staying in? Cuddle up next to the fire and play board games, put in a DVD or catch up with loved ones.

"We've thrown in luxury. Imagine luxury in the wilderness. It doesn't seem to connect. But this is my idea of camping," says Doug Sandahl, owner of the Greer Lodge Resort & Cabins, in a video-tour found here.

Sitting at about 6,000 feet in elevation, Greer Lodge Resort & Cabins allows the child to emerge in the best of us, bringing out with it our inner-astronomer who will enjoy the gorgeous starry nights while staying warm next to a toasty campfire and devouring sizzling S'mores for the ultimate outdoorsy experience.

Greer Lodge's massive open space surrounded by elk, canyons, lakes, streams and pine trees will give the stressed-mind a soothing place to let everything go and simply relax and take in everything nature has to offer.

The resort is offering spring specials that won't have you second-guessing whether to get away or not.

The specials range from a two adult and two children log motel for $119 per night to the dog-friendly cabin that fits six people for $179 per night and to the family reunion cabin that fits 32 people for $1,299 per night. For more information on the various specials, click here.

A 'Road to Nowhere' that leads to Luxury, Wilderness and Peace

Written by Noemi Gonzalez

Monday, 19 March 2012 14:42 -

Greer Lodge Resort & Cabins, located at the end of Route 173 or the "Road to Nowhere," takes you to a corner of Arizona that brings adventure to the forefront. Reserve your cabin or room at the Greer Lodge Resort & Cabins here or call 928.735.7216. For directions to Greer Lodge Resort & Cabins, please click here.