The Montelucia Resort & Spa, a crown jewel of luxury in Scottsdale unveiled its latest forte into the world of fashion with the opening of Dulcinea, a high-end women's fashion boutique.

Described as Scottsdale's up and coming "premier destination boutique", Dulcinea will carry only the finest of high end brands known world wide like Diane Von Furstenberg, Nicole Miller, Black Halo, Tory Burch and Trina Turk to name a few. Resort guests as well as local fashionistas have been clamouring to experience the high end boutique.

"We're thrilled to debut Dulcinea to resort guests, locals and fashionistas alike," Abby Traister, retail director at Montelucia Resort & Spa, says. "With Scottsdale as a premier fashion hub, Dulcinea will add to the sophistication and elegance shoppers expect when seeking high-end retailers in the region."

Everything from dresses, sunglasses, tops, denim and accessories, Dulcinea will carry some of the hottest trends and newest items from designers. Lifestyle and casual lines also shown at the boutique include Hudson jeans, Tart, Ramona La Rue, and Michelle Jonas. With wine and champagne served for VIP guests and on special occasions, customer truly get the five-star shopping experience right in the heart of the desert.

The Montelucia Resort & Spa's distinct Spanish Andalusian theme, is mirrored in the design of the luxurious new boutique. Just like Montelucia is reminiscent of European towns with Moroccan influences, Dulcinea's design captures the old world vibe of the popular region with a blend of subtle, sophisticated taupes, rich browns and creams accented with touches of Moroccan Blue.

With the added touches of Moroccan lights, pottery, lutes and other regional influences, traditional textures and architectural elements come alive and are well incorporated throughout the store.

Dulcinea is set to be open 10 a.m. – 7 p.m. seven days a week.
