

Arizona Foothills Tucson Magazine Announces Women Who Move the City

Written by Written by Arizona Foothills Editors

Monday, 31 December 2007 17:00 - Last Updated Sunday, 01 March 2009 21:43

January 2008 (Tucson, Ariz.) - Arizona Foothills Tucson Magazine is ecstatic to announce the ten ladies chosen for its first annual "Women Who Move the City" feature and would like to thank them for their efforts to better the lives of others.

The five multi-faceted, talented and committed ladies are:

Natalie Bohnet- Executive Director of UA Presents

Melissa McCormick- anthropologist and boutique owner

Raena Janes- Charter Academy owner

Nikki Mehalic-Halle- realtor and philanthropist

Laura Williamson- restaurant owner and sommelier

Arizona Foothills Tucson Magazine won't only be celebrating these women through the feature story. They invite all five women, their guests and VIP members of the community to Cafe Terra Cotta for a January 15 lunch. Complete with a special speaker and gifts, the first-annual "Women Who Move the City" lunch is sure to inspire many to go above and beyond, just like its honorees. Arizona Foothills Tucson Magazine (www.arizonafoothillsmagazine.com), with a readership of 144,000 and a distribution of 30,000, is the latest and greatest Tucson lifestyle magazine. Arizona Foothills Tucson Magazine is dedicated to providing resourceful information on dining, entertainment, homes, fashion, culture and events in Arizona. Arizona Foothills Tucson Magazine is published bi-monthly and is proud to be audited by the Audit Bureau of Circulations (ABC).