Tis' the season for giving back in a festive way! Starting Monday, November 21, the 6th annual Festival of Trees benefitting Phoenix Children's Hospital returns to Scottsdale Fashion Square with dazzling new one-of-a-kind holiday trees designed an decked out by top local interior designers.

Last years designers included superstars like Pulte Homes, Riley Fawcett, IMI Design Studio, Camelback Interior Design, and dozens more. The 2016 designers are guaranteed to take it up a notch and deliver designs even Santa and his elves would be in awe of.

All week long, shoppers will be able to view and bid on the uniquely decorated 9-foot trees on display between Dillard's and Neiman Marcus. Tree bidding concludes on Monday, November 28 and each tree will be personally delivered to the winning bidder or donated back to Phoenix Children's Hospital.

Funds from Festival of Trees support the Hope Fund, helping provide critical new programs, purchase essential equipment, conduct cutting-edge research, and ensure that each and every child who needs treatment receives treatment.
