

Fire Safety Tips for the 4th of July

Written by Written by Stephanie Zucker
Monday, 27 June 2011 11:01 - Last Updated Thursday, 30 June 2011 11:26

The Fourth of July is an exciting day for America, and many people choose to celebrate with fireworks, camping, and barbecues. However, fireworks are dangerous and can lead to fires and severe injuries if not used the correct way. Of all the holidays, the Fourth of July typically presents the greatest fire danger to citizens.

Make your Fourth of July weekend a fun one and stay safe by following these safety tips from the United States Fire Administration.

If you are going to use fireworks:

- _____
- _____
- _____
- _____
- _____
- _____
- _____

If you are going camping:

- _____
- _____
- _____

If you plan on barbecuing:

- _____
- _____
- _____