Makeup has always been a must-have in society. In fact, around 10,000 BCE, the Ancient Egyptians were developing almost every kind of cosmetic that we would use today. To them, looking attractive was the best way to get close to the gods.

I've always been intrigued by the art of makeup, although I still haven't perfected my talent. And as a wife, mom and working gal, I hardly have time to try to cultivate a new skill. I apply my own makeup on most regular days, although I've always opted to work with a makeup artist for special occasions and work events.

In the "olden days," I was a regular at makeup counters at Scottsdale Fashion Square, and then became loyal to the Blow Dry Bars when they took over the Valley. Today, I am thrilled to report that I have found "the one", my must-have makeup guru and friend, Cortney Ann – aka Cortney Ann Makeup.

Cortney has expertly applied my makeup for photo shoots, TV appearances and events. On any given day, Cortney Ann skillfully transforms my look, ultimately boosting my confidence and eliminating the hassle of doing my own makeup. Best yet, she travels for onsite appointments and isn't offended when a client's toddler is hanging all over them during an appointment. (wink wink.)

More About Cortney Ann Makeup

Since 2006, Cortney has been working as a professional makeup artist in the Valley and beyond, creating, enhancing and transforming clients. She specializes in Bridal and special events but has worked with clients for various avenues, including photo shoots, fashion shows, boudoir and TV. Cortney has a natural passion for makeup and it shows in her work. She especially loves having the opportunity to meet wonderful people each day and to make them feel more beautiful and more confident. Cortney believes every individual has unique and beautiful God-given features. She's grateful to be the one to add a little blush.
