Now that Facebook bought Instagram, your mom is going to be totally into it. #notcool. So where do we turn?

Jittergram is the hip, new alternative for those of us with iPhones who are looking for "the new Instagram". Simply take two or more photos and the app turns them in to a 3D stereogram. While this is not a new practice, it's a cool, underappreciated medium that belongs somewhere between your billions of photos and overlong iMovies. Save the stereograms for your blog or Tumblr account, or Tweet them to friends.

Make a .gif of a Barbie walking across your desk. Make a .gif of your hungover boyfriend.

I just .gifed this wild Subway sandwich.
