Extra Extra!

This swimmer may be known for trying to beat out Michael Phelps, wearing a diamond grill on the medal podium, and of course making women worldwide drool over his good looks. Ryan Lochte became quite the star during The Summer Olympics 2012 in London, and his fifteen minutes of fame are far from over. He was rumored to possibly be the next Bachelor but E! has a better idea. They gave Ryan his own reality show "What Would Ryan Lochte Do" that will start airing in April of this year. So, whether you watch for the eye candy or the blonde moments, he has been called the "the male version of Jessica Simpson". All we know now is that Reality T.V. just got that much better.
