A staple of the Scottsdale art scene in Old Town Scottsdale, Gallery Andrea is owned and operated by international artist Andrea de Kerpel and her daughter Andrea Zakrzewski. For August they are showcasing three artists: Renzo Sanchez-Silva, Eric Carter and Zeller Ewa who work in diverse mediums and styles.

Renzo Sanchez-Silva specializes in photography on metal, with a majority of his work centering on capturing the ocean. Renzo Sanchez-Silva's metallic prints delve the mysterious vastness of the sea—a phenomenon, which is as physically dangerous, beautiful, and desolate, as it is weighted with symbolic import. According to the artist, "Water and sunlight are the main elements that appear in my compositions. Blur and sharpness coexist to represent concurrent mental states of confusion and certainty." He was born in Peru and Studied in Italy.

Eric Carter is a self-taught award winning artist, who experiments with many different styles, including Wildlife and Landscapes'. He chooses to paint those objects he sees around him. Simple, everyday objects that he finds beautiful and are often overlooked.

While Ewa Zeller paints natural subjects in a combination of representative styles. The composition and color relationships are the drivers of each piece. All of the natural subjects can offer the opportunity to show off relationships of color, which is special for her. Zeller's work has a concentration on the classic styles of Europe, while evolving from these with a renewed sense of self. "The painting is my joy and delight and attempt to survive the chaos of the twenty first Century..." says Zeller.
