Bentley Gallery

This Phoenix art gallery's specialty is two-pronged: contemporary art and ancient artifacts. The Bentley Gallery represents mid-career and museum-collected artists in the United States and Europe who work in everything from textiles to drawing to video. Additionally, the gallery collects authentic antiquities from the Chinese bi and cong and from the Neolithic period.

Cosanti

A definite departure from the stretches of galleries along Roosevelt Row and Old Town Scottsdale, the experimental earth-formed concrete structures of Cosanti were designed by famed architect Paolo Soleri to be minimalistic, sustainable and meditative. While the grounds themselves are certainly an artform, Cosanti is known for its bronze and ceramic bells. These handcrafted bells feature one-of-a-kind designs, so no two pieces are ever the same.

monOrchid

Nestled in the heart of Roosevelt Row, MonOrchid has been a focal point of the downtown arts district for the past 20 years. The gallery represents artists working in a variety of mediums and styles, many of whom are Arizona natives. Also located in the open floorplan space are Be Coffee, The Dressing Room and The Bosque, making the gallery a true hub of community activity.

Royse Contemporary

Another Scottsdale Arts District staple, Royse Contemporary represents a small number of emerging and established artists and presents a monthly rotating exhibition. The gallery also offers consultation and public relations services for both collectors and artists to ensure patrons gain exposure to the diverse talent housed at Royse.

Shemer Art Center

Both an educational facility and exhibition space, Shemer Art Center has been a hidden gem in the Phoenix art scene for decades. Alongside its workshops for amateur artists of all ages, the gallery features a packed calendar of exhibitions of local artists. With panoramic views of Camelback Mountain and plenty of Arcadia charm, Shemer is the perfect place to learn about and appreciate art in all its forms.
