Wedding websites are quickly becoming the norm, especially as destination weddings are becoming more popular.

A website for your wedding is a wonderful resource for your guests to get a better idea of where they will be going, where they can possibly stay, and simplifies the gift registry as well.

However, putting together a wedding website can be incredibly time consuming during a time when you don't have much free time.

Thankfully, there are some great resources out there that greatly simplify the building of your wedding website and provide you with a great looking site to share with your guests and store memories for later!
