

Inspectress Gadget: HTC Inspire 4G- it Makes (HTC) Sense

Written by Claire Perkins

If you're like Inspectress Gadget, it's easy to keep all the phones straight. A certain someone I live with is always talking about the latest Androids, Blackberrys, and iPhones, and it's easy to know every little detail if you pay attention. But for those of us who don't have the luxury of dating Inspector Gadget (and don't spend all day on gadget blogs) it can be difficult.

Well, the HTC Inspire 4G is a fast, beautiful, powerful and easy-to-use Android device that will work for just about anybody.

Like this black stallion, the HTC Inspire 4G is equal parts speed and beauty.

Let's learn more about it!

Today's Toy

The HTC Inspire 4G boasts an incredible 4.3-inch, super LCD touchscreen that is as intuitive as it is pretty. Coupled with the 1 GHz processor, HTC Inspire 4G's obvious 4G coverage makes it lightning-quick and easy to use. The bomb cameras and crystal clear call quality make this little guy unstoppable.

The Flo Jo of phones.

HTC Sense

Best of all, the new HTC Inspire 4G will be the first phone in the US to offer the next gen of popular HTC Sense mobile experience, which delivers the most-wanted info by making it simple, bringing it to the forefront of the mobile experience. It includes new easy ways to stay connected to pals, like FriendStream, which offers Facebook, Twitter and Flickr updates in one consolidated space. It also offers users the ability to find a lost phone on a map or wipe out all the data on the phone through the HTCSense.com site.
