

Luxury Apartment of the Month: Villas at San Dorado in Oro Valley

Written by Christina Silvestri

A brand new residential complex with a sense of community is coming to Tucson's prestigious Oro Valley. Opening in spring 2014, the Villas at San Dorado feature beautiful upscale homes tucked among the shadows of the gorgeous Pusch Ridge within the Santa Catalina Mountains.

The Mark Taylor residential community offers nine spacious floor plan options of one, two and three bedroom apartments with modern and custom finishes. Just some of the upscale indoor features include extra-high 9-foot ceilings, plush carpeting, kitchen islands, custom wood cabinets, stainless steel appliances, walk-in closets, and a private patio or balcony. Although rent prices are still to be determined, apartment sizes range from a 779-square-foot one bedroom with one bathroom to a 1381-square-foot three bedroom with two bathrooms.

Replete with various retailers, restaurants and grassy areas that host farmers markets and community events, the walkable main street neighborhood lends a unique sense of community at the Villas at San Dorado. Exclusive community features include a state-of-the-art fitness facility that's fully equipped with a yoga studio, spinning room and virtual personal trainers, a clubhouse with social lounge, a cyber café, picnic area, and a Mark-Taylor trademark lagoon-style pool, among other amenities. With lush desert landscaping and verdant lawns, beloved pets are also welcome at the Villas at San Dorado, though certain breed and weight restrictions apply.

Be one of the first 50 people to apply for the Villas at San Dorado's First 50 Club and receive 5 weeks of complimentary rent along with some neighborhood perks.
