The skin is the body's biggest protective asset and with dry weather and aging to come, your skin is more than likely to take a beating. It's time to treat it right! Luckily, the scientists at Trilipiderm have come up with a proactive solution in repairing damages of the skin and replenishing it with moisture.

The mastermind behind it all, Dr. Alan Wohlman, knows his stuff. Wohlman graduated from Princeton University with a Masters degree and Doctorate in Biological Sciences, has pioneered research in the area of cellular physiology and biochemistry, and is the author of more than 40 patents. He discovered the key to their seriously hydrating formula which is all about perfecting the correct balance between water and oils to correct the upper level of the skin.

With unique ingredients like natural vegetable and jojoba oils, meadowfoam, chamomile, and vitamin E, Trilipiderm All Body Moisture Retention Creme is bound to repair the driest of skin and keep it looking and feeling young and healthy. By utilizing all the natural ingredients, this formula not only aids in correcting aging skin but also prevents from water loss while replacing essential lipids for both women and men.
