

Goldwater Hills Beauty

Written by Story by David M. Brown

Wednesday, 20 February 2013 10:25 - Last Updated Wednesday, 20 February 2013 10:49

Set in a Paradise Valley hillside once owned by Senator Barry Goldwater, this 8,700-sq.-ft. Southwestern contemporary home includes a prow-like porte-cochère that welcomes guests with colorful split-face block and a copper standing-seam roof.

Formal Living/Dining Rooms

The grand radiused room greets entrants with Manhattan-chic traditional and contemporary elements—a theme continued throughout the home. Natural light radiates from the 6-foot-wide skylight segmented by Sam Terry Studios in Cave Creek. The center divider cabinet island is clad in zinc metal etched with a leaf pattern, which carries through to the fireplace at the hearth seating area. Outside are Camelback Mountain and city-light views south to the airport and beyond.

Hallway

Daylight and moonlight fill the master-suite-to-kitchen hallway through latticework, whose square pattern echoes the 18-by-18-inch Mystic Mauve honed granite flooring tile from China. Doors were hand-carved by Morrelli Wood Working in Albuquerque, N.M., and custom finished in automotive pewter. The centerpiece of the art-filled space is a model of the historic Hotel Beverly in Manhattan, once owned by the hotelier family.

Kitchen

The small work triangle between the island sink and the cooktop holds an in-drawer dishwasher and under-counter refrigerators—perfect for an informal breakfast while watching the news on two built-in televisions. The cabinets are handcrafted with silver leaf and stenciling by Mueller Turner Company, and the walls here and throughout the home were hand-finished in multiple layers of silver and pewter by Robert O'Connell Design in Scottsdale.

Goldwater Hills Beauty

Written by Story by David M. Brown

Wednesday, 20 February 2013 10:25 - Last Updated Wednesday, 20 February 2013 10:49

Master Bath

The floor of this dramatic room is honed Italian marble by Exact Marble and Granite in Chandler; the counters are the same but polished. The floors, shower and shower bench are heated with a radiant water system. The privacy art glass windows are a three-dimensional sand-blasted floral design by Sam Terry Studios. The Mueller Turner Company finished the silver-leaf cabinets. The hardware pulls are rock crystal antique pewter by Sherle Wagner International.

Her Master-Bedroom Closet

The spectacular his-and-hers closets store and protect clothing behind dust-free glass doors and drawers with UV-protected lighting. Custom shoe drawers provide easy access and maximize storage in the allocated space. Kiesler Enterprises Inc. in Scottsdale designed and finished the cabinets with multiple high-luster coats of metallic polyester for durability. The rock-crystals pulls are by Sherle Wagner International.

DESIGN TEAM &NBSP;

Architectural Designer: Gerry Jones, Gerry Jones International (Carefree)

Interior Designer: Bess Jones, Bess Jones Interiors (Scottsdale)

Builders: Tim Larson and Ron Steege, La Casa Builders Inc. (Scottsdale)