Ooh la la! The world's largest online dating site, Plenty of Fish, has compressed internal data to uncover which United States cities provide the best opportunity for finding love on the Web. Turns out, of all Arizona cities, Glendale, Mesa and Chandler provide the shot at love for singles, according to an online study of more than 2 million singles across the nation.

Women living in Glendale have the highest percentage of successful relationships from the Web, while Mesa and Chandler are the best cities for single men.

To come up with this date, POF assessed what singles want, how far they will travel for love, which singles want children the most, and what singles are willing to compromise for a relationship. www.pof.com.
