

Thrill-Seekers to Rappel 27-Story Tower in Support of Special Olympics Arizona

Written by Karah Van Kammen

Tuesday, 03 December 2013 13:34 - Last Updated Thursday, 05 December 2013 16:28

CityScape Phoenix and RED Development will sponsor, "Over the Edge", an adrenaline packed event where 100 Arizonans will go rappelling 27 stories down their office tower. The event will run from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 14 and is open to the public for viewing. All proceeds benefit Special Olympics Arizona.

Participation in "Over the Edge" requires each person that rappels to raise a minimum of $1,000 in donations, which is the amount needed to support at least two athletes in 2014. Participants must be at least 18 years old on the event date and not weigh more than 350 pounds.

"Over the Edge is a fresh, fun approach to fundraising and is one the most exciting events we do," Tim Martin, CEO of Special Olympics. "We are receiving tremendous interest in this year's event and it's inspiring to know how many people will literally go 'over the edge' for our athletes. CityScape is the hub in downtown Phoenix and is the perfect location to host such a vibrant event."

"It's going to be an exciting afternoon at CityScape to watch thrill-seekers rappel down our office tower, all for the sake of a great cause," said Jeff Moloznik, vice president of development at RED. "Special Olympics Arizona is an organization that has done inspiring work in the Valley and we're pleased to participate in this signature event. We hope this will be the beginning of a longstanding tradition at CityScape Phoenix with the potential to grow the event into the largest of its kind in the country."

For more information how to rappel "Over the Edge", visit www.specialolympicsarizona.org. For more information on CityScape Phoenix, a retailer directory and a parking map, visit www.cityscapephoenix.com.