

Phoenix Film Festival's (R)evolution of Film Series

Written by Melissa Larsen

Wednesday, 29 January 2014 15:29 -

Attention all film buffs--especially those who are fans of such cinematic classics as "Jaws." The Phoenix Film Festival continues its (R)evolution of Film Series, by bringing classic blockbusters to the big screen, on Feb. 13 with the 1975 Steven Spielberg hit, "Jaws." Once a month, from January through March, the Phoenix Film Festival will be showing films that revolutionized Hollywood at the Harkins Scottsdale 101. All shows start at 7 p.m. The movies are free to attend; however, donations will support the Phoenix Film Foundation. All of the films in the (R)evolution of Film Series will be introduced along with a post-film discussion by film critic Colin Boyd, and each film will have a different co-host by a local film critic, including:

Thursday, Feb. 13, "Jaws" co-hosted by Mike & Joel Massie (GoneWiththeTwins.com)

Thursday, March 6, "Pulp Fiction" co-hosted by Henry Beck (CultureCatch.com)