During the month of May, AZADI Fine Rugs is donating $50 dollars from the sale of every rug to help victims of the Nepal earthquake. David Neishabori, the owner of AZADI Fine Rugs, met earthquake survivor Pushpa Basnet when "Waiting for Mamu" debuted at the 2014 Sedona International Film Festival. At the presentation of the film in Sedona, Neishabori surprised everyone with the donation of a year's worth of rent for Butterfly Home, a nonprofit organization founded by Basnet and based in Nepal. Over the past year, they have developed a friendship. In order to help the survivors get tents, grain, sugar, salt and more, the $50 per sale donated by AZADI will benefit Unicef-Unite for Children, Relief efforts in Nepal.
