Celebrated London born artist, Peregrine Heathcote joins Bonner David Galleries for his third annual show at the Scottsdale gallery. With the Fiesta Bowl Art Walk right around the corner and the gorgeous weather, now is the perfect time to stroll down on December 29th and discover Peregrine Heathcote, if you have not already.

Born in London, Heathcote has been very successful in his career. Having graduated from Florence Academy of Art in 1995 and going on to hold many exhibitions from the 2004 Royal Society of British Artists to 2007 Albemarle Gallery to 2009 Albemarle Gallery. Heathcote received the honor of having a BBC documentary published about his portrait painting. Heathcote began as a portrait painter, which received noteworthy attention from famous Captains of Industry to entertainers. Eventually, his work would evolve into journey pieces which consisted of automobiles and airplanes.

Heathcote is known for his use of classic automobiles, aircrafts and fashion within his art. The paintings depict the pre-war period of the last century. Heathcote is able to create such beauty and detail in each scene that he paints. He leaves his work for open interpretation among those that view his artwork. Each piece begins to tell a story and the audience has the ability to imagine their own story line. From modes of transportation, which are perfectly replicated from the respected era, to glamorous vintage fashions, Heathcote uses real subjects (dancers and actors) for his paintings. One can find an extensive amount of vintage wardrobes and props at Heathcote's studio for each of his pieces. These aspects that go into Heathcote's work really help to create life-like paintings for the audience to enjoy.

His work has become globally popular among galleries and art collectors. With requests from galleries in Boston, Greenwich CT., Nantucket, Scottsdale, San Francisco and Laguna Beach as well as Cape Town in South Africa. His artwork will be displayed from December 29th through January 18th at the Bonner David Galleries. Heathcote continues to sell timeless pieces of art that many will enjoy for years to come.
