

Short and Sweet: Flower Girl and Ring Bearer Attire

Written by Written by Ashley Gain and Hannah Noel

Thursday, 23 August 2012 11:05 - Last Updated Thursday, 23 August 2012 11:15

From too-cute ties to frilly pint-size frocks, here's where to go for adorable flower girl and ring bearer attire.

Just like everyone else in the bridal party, the flower girl and ring bearer are very significant to the bride and groom. Isn't it captivating to see a bride kneeling down to talk with the children who hold a special place in her heart? Both the flower girl and ring bearer are very important during the wedding ceremony, as well. Following behind them is the beautiful bride herself, after all.

Through a little girl's eyes, a bride signifies a modern-day princess who was lucky to have found her Prince Charming. It is important to let the flower girl feel just as beautiful as the bride standing in her gown. Here are a few special-occasion dress shops to check out:

Jujus Tutus (pictured) is a wonderful Etsy shop that has been featured on TLC's "Four Weddings" and the chic wedding blog, Wedding Chicks. Shop owner and designer, Phoenix's Julie Read, offers a wonderful selection of flower girl dresses that capture the innocence and beauty of a little girl. www.etsy.com/shop/justtutus.

If a traditional look is more your style, then the whimsical and charming Katina Katoo is perfect for the precious princess attendant on your day. Sashes, bows, luxurious fabrics and large flowers adorn these dresses. Think about picking a few dresses in different styles but cohesive colors. www.katina.katoo.com.

Beane and Company's timeless flower girl and ring bearer garments have been featured on many sites and blogs including Martha Stewart Bridal Inspiration Blog, Style Me Pretty and Wedding Wire as the winner of the 2011 Bride's Choice Award. Beane and Company is a passion-driven shop, and every outfit is handmade with care. Every getup can be custom ordered. www.etsy.com/shop/beaneandco.

The ring bearer is also important to a traditional wedding ceremony; he represents the union between the bride and the groom as he is the one who carries the wedding rings. It is essential that a ring bearer is outfitted in something that captures a boy's youth and naturally fun spirit. Tadpole and Lily offers fun neckties and bow ties that are handmade. Whether the wedding is traditional or modern-chic, the shop has wonderful options that will fit any bride and groom's wedding style. www.tadpoleandlily.com.

Another wedding-planner fave is the Little Gentleman store on Etsy. The variety of patterns and wide range of color-play brings a pop of your style and color scheme to the ceremony. Convenience is key, too, as every bow and necktie is fully adjustable. www.etsy.com/shop/littlegentleman.