Kathy Shayna Shocket has the inside scoop on the stories that make headlines.

Kathy has the scoop on the breaking news.

It's a spectacular 25,000 square foot mansion in Paradise Valley.....And now the famous homeowner- former baseball player Randy Johnson will soon be selling the magnificent 5 acre property!

Randy and his wife Lisa Johnson want to downsize now that their four children are older. And they've already bought an 8,000 sq. foot home in Scottsdale.

The sprawling Paradise Valley house has 7 bedrooms, 12 baths and also boasts a fire pole between the first floor and basement, a 20 seat home theatre, a music room with a recording studio. Not to mention the wood fire pizza oven and luxurious guest house and a gorgeous pool area with a slide.

Well known architect Erik Peterson of Phx Architecture designed the home fit for a baseball king. Randy now 50 years old, who retired in 2010, played for the Arizona Diamondbacks, New York Yankees and Montreal Expos- among other teams in his coveted career.

Check out the luxurious dining room and golden pillars.

Great photos of house thanks to Dino Tonn. So who will be working out next in this home's 1,800 square foot work out room?

Stay tuned.
