For all of you early vacation planners, it's not too early to start thinking about summer 2012. Caesars Palace and Nobu Hospitality, professionals in the art of luxurious boutique hotel and restaurant creation, have teamed up to bring lavishness like you've never seen before to Las Vegas next summer. Check out everything Nobu has to offer and prepare to stay in a true lap of luxury.

The unique boutique-style hotel will pair the first over Nobu hotel with the first Nobu Restaurant and Lounge on the Las Vegas strip. This five-star combination is a sure way to attract trend-setters from around the world.

The 180-room interior, designed by David Rockwell of the Rockwell group, will showcase natural materials while focusing on the Japanese elegance that Nobu is famous for. If the elegant interior is not enough to attract you, the exclusive accommodations and world-class entertainment is sure to. The same shopping, dining and entertainment experiences that Caesar's Palace guests have grown accustomed to will be offered at the Nobu Hotel, but with a fresh, boutique-style twist.

If guests wish not to stay at the Nobu Hotel, the restaurant and lounge offered is set to be an A-plus experience in itself. The 11,200 square foot lounge and restaurant, set in the heart of the Nobu Hotel, will be the "it" spot for anyone hoping to see or be seen. One can experience socialization in a contemporary setting while enjoying the unique meals by Chef Nobu Matsuhisa. The restaurant will also feature several teppanyaki tables, a sushi bar and a private dining area. The key hot spot, however, is sure to be the large lounge and bar featuring a massive 327 seats. Be sure to mark the calendar summer of 2012 for a luxurious destination unlike any you've experienced before. www.nobuhospitality.com.
