

Las Vegas' Luxury Spas

Written by Story by Marlene Montanez

Wednesday, 29 April 2009 11:51 - Last Updated Wednesday, 29 April 2009 14:54

Sometimes after a long day at the casino table, you just want to wine down with a relaxing and rejuvenating spa treatment. Make it luxurious with one of these high-end spas in Vegas!

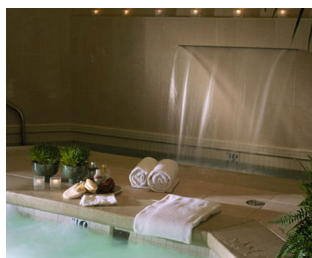

The Spa at Four Seasons Hotel Las Vegas

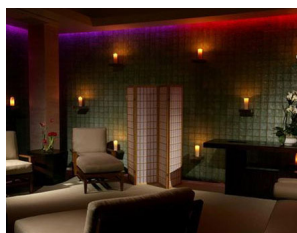

An intimate experience is what you'll find at The Spa at Four Seasons Hotel Las Vegas. With just 16 treatment rooms, you'll be able to avoid the hustle and bustle of spa giants and relax in peace and quiet. The spa features premium product lines like Valmont, a Swiss anti-aging product line that uses the properties of glacial spring water; and Fleur, a holistic line that incorporates floral extracts and essential oils. The Four Seasons Desert Oasis Treatment appeals to all the senses and is a pampering session we definitely recommend while there.

The Ritz-Carlton, Lake Las Vegas Spa

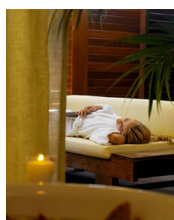

While most think of spending the day at the spa, The Ritz-Carlton, Lake Las Vegas's spa offers a special Moonlight Spa menu of services. Treatments are offered alresco on seven nights of the month when the moon is either in its waxing, full or waning phase. Pampering is based on the moon's phase and treatments are performed by the resort's private lagoon, so spagoers can connect with the moon above. Guests also receive a crystal at the end of the service representing the particular moon phase that was present during the treatment.

Spa & Salon Bellagio

Spa'ing at the Bellagio? We recommend one of the spa's signature treatments like the Tropical Enzyme Escape. The 5,000-sq.-ft. zen-influenced spa incorporates all of the elements into its décor resulting in a sleek and relaxing experience. But it also looks after the gents with its spa offerings tailored toward males. Men can indulge in their own outdoor relaxation balcony that overlooks the pool or partake in a straight razor shave in the Private Barber Room within Salon Bellagio.

The Spa at Green Valley Ranch

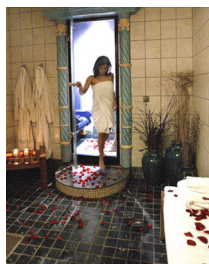

Las Vegas' Luxury Spas

Written by Story by Marlene Montanez

Wednesday, 29 April 2009 11:51 - Last Updated Wednesday, 29 April 2009 14:54

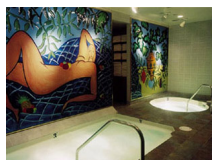

Imagine being pampered while gazing up at calming blue water. That's exactly what you'll experience at The Spa at Green Valley Ranch. The 30,000-sq.-ft. facility in the pool area of the resort has glass-ceiling treatment rooms with a view of the pool overhead. With 22 treatment rooms open to both guests and day visitors, the spa has much to offer.

Canyon Ranch SpaClub

Those who've lived in the Valley long know of Canyon Ranch's fab reputation. Well, Tucson isn't the only place where you can indulge in its pampering. While in Vegas, experience Canyon Ranch SpaClub linked between The Venetian Las Vegas and The Palazzo Las Vegas resort-casinos. The newly expanded 134,000-sq.-ft. spa haven has two fitness centers, a 40-foot indoor rock climbing wall, a Pilates studio, a cycling gym, a Kenesis studio and more than 100 treatment rooms. We suggest the Mango Sugar Glo; the 100-minute service leaves skin silky smooth with a conditioning mango-sugar scrub followed by a full-body massage with mango body lotion.

Paris Spa by Mandara

The French know a thing or two about skin care, and Paris Las Vegas upholds this standard at Paris Spa by Mandara. The 25,500-sq.-ft facility offers signature services like the Visible Brilliance Facial, a treatment that firms, hydrates, rejuvenates and smoothes the skin; and French Silkening Body Polish, which moisturizes and hydrates skin. Featured product lines include Elemis and La Therapie; and you can also indulge in the steam room, sauna, whirlpool or fitness center before or after your treatment. In-room and poolside services are also available upon request.

Qua Baths & Spa

You'll completely forget the chaos that is the Las Vegas Strip upon entering Qua Baths & Spa at Caesar's Palace. The spa's theme is the healing and calming properties of water, evoked in its décor of cascading waterfalls, its use of natural light and the Roman baths available for both men and women. Inspired by ancient Roman baths, the three pools offer varying temperatures and are meant to encourage "social spa'ing." Other Roman rituals are offered at Qua sure to soothe and relieve any physical and mental tensions. Check out the Arctic Ice Room where snow falls from the ceiling; or a tea room where a tea sommelier will pair a tea for you based on your treatment.
