Extra! Extra!

It's not everyday you find $500 stashed between booth cushions of a fancy restaurant. Even moreso, it's not everyday you instantly seek its rightful owner without a second thought of keeping it for yourself. But for one server at Houston's Restaurant in Scottsdale, that's exactly what happened.

This past week, a guest had accidentally misplaced that amount during dinner and, after searching to no avail, returned to Houston's to find all his money safely there.

"We already know how great the food and service is there, but what a pleasant surprise to know that the people that work at Houston's are also of the highest quality," the guest said.

In the world where "survival of the fittest" seems like the only way out, it's encouraging to know that there are indeed many people who look out for each other.
