

New Most Expensive Home in America For Sale

Written by Caitie Andreen

Monday, 20 May 2013 12:26 - Last Updated Monday, 20 May 2013 13:10

One can dream, right? 99.999 percent of us cannot imagine having over $100 million to spend on a home. But for the .0001 percent of Americans looking to purchase a home of complete luxury, the perfect opportunity is now available. According to recent results, Greenwich Connecticut is now the location for the most expensive home for sale in America. Listed publicly on the market for the first time in more than a century, "Copper Beech Farm" has a strikingly high asking price of $190 million. This is nearly $170 million more than the Valley's most expensive home located in Paradise Valley. Owned by the Sussmans, the Paradise Valley mansion is valued at $19.5 million.

The Sussman Paradise Valley Mansion featured below:

So what exactly makes this Connecticut home so special and different than any other home to declare it worth $190 million? Not only is it in one of America's most expensive zip codes with a prime location of only 45 minutes outside of New York City, it is on a tremendous piece of land. Beach front and more than 50 acres, the views offered at Copper Beach Farm are incomparable. Whoever the next owner of this "Great Estates" can expect to live in the complete luxury.

The Copper Farm Beech Estate featured below:

